

Almond FinTech Announces Key Partnerships with Leading Financial Institutions

Marking a major milestone as the team prepares for Singapore FinTech Festival

BOSTON, MA, November 15, 2023 — Almond FinTech, a B2B technology company transforming cross-border payment solutions, is proud to add four leading FinTech companies as customers — including DigiPH (Philippines), Redision (Indonesia), and XPS 247 (United States).

These strategic partnerships enable Almond to open funds transfers corridors between the US, Indonesia, the Philippines, and Malaysia, while empowering the end-users of these institutions to send and receive money in real-time and with the best available rates.

Additional information about the collaborations will be discussed at the Singapore FinTech Festival (November 15-17), where Almond will showcase its commitment to fostering innovation and driving the future of cross border payment solutions.

The Singapore FinTech Festival is a global convention where policy, finance, and technology communities come together to create impactful connections and explore cutting-edge financial solutions.

“These collaborations represent a significant milestone in our mission to provide people around the world with more effective financial solutions and drive forward the digital transformation of the financial industry,” said Adam Swartzbaugh, CEO and Co-Founder of Almond.”

Utilizing proprietary technology, Almond is disrupting the remittance market with the ability to track hundreds of verified digital currencies and blockchains to identify optimal routing for international transfers. As a result, customers receive the lowest possible cost combined with the highest availability, as well as near-instant settlements and robust protection against forex risks — all while minimizing international float requirements.

"Our collaboration with Almond represents an exciting chapter in reshaping cross-border payment standards. Together, we're dedicated to providing users with reliable, easy-to-use, and secure financial solutions, revolutionizing the way transactions are conducted around the globe." - Paulo Koo, CEO of XPS 247

"Embracing a collaboration with Almond FinTech is a pivotal step forward for us in enhancing financial transactions. This strategic partnership is a testament to the mutual benefits we anticipate, as we aim to augment and complement Almond FinTech's strengths in cross-border payments. Our shared vision is to establish new benchmarks by delivering sophisticated and user-friendly financial solutions that seamlessly align with the diverse needs of our users. Together, we are poised to derive immense value from this alliance, fostering growth and innovation in the financial landscape.” - JD Gonzales, Head of Operations of DigiPH

Those attending Singapore FinTech Festival are invited to learn more about how Almond is revolutionizing cross-border payments for financial institutions by visiting the Almond team at booth 4D2.
